Distillery F & AC in Peace and War

Distillery Football & Athletics Club (Grosvenor Park, Belfast). Minute Book, 1932-1941. In a thick folio volume, hf. morocco on heavy buckram-covered boards, 474 numbered pages (and a few unnumbered), mostly typescript reports laid down, from June 1939 some manuscript reports directly written in, all duly signed by Chairmen. Covers worn but internally in very good condition throughout.

Directors' meetings were generally held monthly. The minutes, which are tersely written, usually include attendance of directors and shareholders, applications and correspondence, financial matters, transfer requests and decisions (some to and from English clubs, with much detail about named players), appointments, disputes and disagreements, legal matters, relations with the Irish Football League, etc. From September 1939 onward there are occasional references to war conditions, availability of players who may have returned from England, petrol rationing, air raids (meeting 30 June 1941, p.464, Glentoran offered use of Grosvenor Park as 'owing to the recent Air Raid' their own ground was wrecked, war damage insurance etc., otherwise business as usual. [The German air raids on Belfast took place in April and May 1941].

The volume concludes with the meeting of 22 Sept. 1941, followed by minutes of the AGM of 5 July 1940 (out of sequence), countersigned 6.10.41.

A volume of particular interest and importance to anyone with knowledge of the players and personalities involved. The Distillery Club was founded in 1879.

Lot 480

Rare Confederate Revolver

A rare and scarce Confederate Navy Contract LeMat and Girard's patent London two barrel Revolver, Sn. 8712.

A fine example of this London, England made LeMat Revolver manufactured about 1865. This was the last percussion revolver manufactured under LeMat's patent. Caliber 42 rifled barrel & 16 gauge smoothbore. Serial Number 8712. In the book on LeMats by Doug Adams, Adams states the London LeMats serial numbered 8000 - 9000 were a Confederate Navy contract made by Tipping & Co. in England. Late London made LeMat with 6-9/16" octagon barrel with block letter address on top flat "LeMat & Girard's patent London". It has the tall LeMat front sight & has the serial number on right flat in front of cylinder. Serial number also appears on right front side of frame and barrel near the breech. No serial number was observed on smooth bore barrel near the breech. No serial number was observed on smooth bore barrel but it does have two Birmingham proofs & number "18" which probably refers to bore diameter. It has left side rammer that operates in a channel between barrel and rear barrel boss and the serial number on inside of rammer handle. It has a single pin barrel assembly lock with knurled head. It has a centre mounted articulated hammer nose & 9 shot cylinder that pivots around smooth bore barrel and has serial number with Birmingham proofs around perimeter. It has integral solid butt cap & lanyard loop without ring. This revolver represents one of the important models in the string of variations produced in this revolver. With documentation in Adam's book, it is highly likely that this revolver was manufactured on contract for the Confederacy. This LeMat retains much of its original finish. The remaining metal parts have a nice dark, uncleaned brown patina., some pitting, as a weapon, w.a.f. (1)

Provenance: Important Private Irish Collection.

Lot 620

Westmeath Land Deed, 1760

Manuscript: An exemplification of common recovery suffered by Richard Nugent of the lands of Robinstown and Higginstown, Co. Westmeath, 1760.

Prior to 1834 it was illegal for a landowner to sell part of his estate. The usual way round this was for him to "suffer a common recover". This took the form of a notional law-suit featuring his friends or legal advisors or court officials or even fictional characters. The legal phraseology was often extremely complicated, but so formulaic that it was seldom written out in full.

Going through this process gave a landowner absolute title to the lands mentioned, and enabled him (for instance) to sell them or to break an entail.

The grants issued were designed to impress the recipient - large, written on vellum (often in Latin) and in an ornate script. They bore the King's portrait at the top and had the great seal of the Irish Exchequer attached (unfortunately missing in this case). (1)

Castlereagh Industrial Photograph Album

A very good Album of Photographs from the British Tabulating Company (BTC) plant at Castlereagh, late 1940s, exteriors and interiors, including close shots of machinery, workers etc., evidently professionally photographed.

BTC is best known as one of the suppliers for the 'Enigma' code breaking machinery at Bletchley Park in Britain during World War II. The work at Castlereagh concerned assembly of their Hollerith machines.

The Album itself (large oblong quarto) needs attention (upper cover detached), but the photographs are in excellent condition, as an Album, w.a.f. (1)

[Famine Period] Co. Leitrim, a printed Letter to Tenants Signed by John Law (Agent of Lord Leitrim) dated Milford November 1847, stating that 'the abandonment of the ruinous system of Rundale being an indispensable preliminary to any improvement in the condition of the tenantry .. the Earl of Leitrim is willing to accept a surrender of the Leases in such Townlands as are still in Rundale - so that each Tenant may hold his land in one compact and separate farm' on stated terms, etc. Issued to a Magharabeg tenant. Single sheet with integral blank. 'Rundale' was a landholding system common before the Famine, especially in Western counties, whereby land was held in common and allocated to tenants in strips, so that each tenant had a mixture of good and bad land. It led to fragmentation of holdings. As a document. Rare, w.a.f. (1)

A fine and important collection of Ulster Wit
Belfast Political Scrapbook, 19th century

A large folio Scrapbook, in marbled boards, by Marcus Ward of Belfast, containing a fine and important collection of over 60 cartoons and lampoons, circa 1830-80, mainly concerning Ulster elections and political controversies, including a group referring to Daniel O'Connell featuring Church-State conflicts ('Pills for Protestants by The Leading Repealer'; 'The Derrynane Beagle-Hunt', 'O'Connell's Departure from Belfast', 'Dan's Last Flutter'), etc., also sardonic cartoons and caricatures featuring candidates in various elections, e.g. Lisburn election 1853, Harbour Board election 1857, 'A Lot of Belfast Jackasses Fond of Scotch 'Hay', being fed by a Liberal Candidate' (1865), Belfast Election 1868, 'A Calm Judicial Inquiry' (Portadown 1869), Belfast Election 1974, Belfast Election 1878, General Election 1880, several featuring Gladstone, etc.

There are also posters and mock announcements ('Grand & Novel Entertainment in the County of Down', tickets may be had of Guy Fawkes at the Sign of the Three Rats near Comber), poems including 'Elegy Written in a Country Back-Yard', 'A Tale of the Radical Party and its Melancholy Fate' (1857), 'The Ballyweaney Boanerges', a column headed 'Sale of Lord Pisswick's Conservative Stud' with names written in manuscript beside some of the paragraphs; 'To the No-Bill-I-Tie and Shareholders of the County Down Railway', and other cartoons and lampoons whose application will be clear to students of the period.

The prints are in various sizes, many around 10 x 14 ins, some larger, mostly on flimsy paper, generally unsigned and with no printer named. They are evidently extracted from contemporary newspapers, many issued as supplements. They are neatly tipped in, and while there is some damage and soiling, condition is generally good. The spine of the volume has been neatly strengthened.

A splendid anthology of sardonic Ulster Wit, probably unique in its range and certainly impossible to duplicate. As an Album, w.a.f. (1)

Secret Orders Issued To Military Officers - known as "The Castle Document", leaflet 7 1/2" x 5", one side only, April 1916 "The following precautionary measures have been sanctioned by the Irish Office on the recommendation of the General Officer Commanding the Forces in Ireland" - As circulated by P.J. Little, ed. New Ireland office 13 Fleet Street, Dublin, 15 April, 1916. An article published in An t-?glac -The Irish Volunteer) on 8 April 1916 called for Volunteer manoeuvres on Easter Sunday 23 April 1916. On Wednesday, 15 April 1916, the IRB forged a notice supposedly decoded from a communication emanating from Dublin Castle. It was printed on a hand press by Joseph Plunkett and Rory O'Connor at Larkfield House, Plunkett's home off the Lower Kimmage Road. It excluded punctuation marks and capitalisation due to the poor supply of printing font available to them. Known as the 'Castle Document', apparently ordering the execution of Eoin Mac Neill, arrest of Volunteer leaders and occupation of Dublin by the British Army, it was shown to MacNeill. He was then easily persuaded to give an order to the Irish Volunteers 'to resist any British action.' This was the order that the IRB needed to go ahead with the Rising. On 19 April 1916 Alderman Tom Kelly read the "Castle Order" to a meeting of Dublin Corporation. The Nationalist weekly paper, New Ireland, edited by Patrick J. Little (1884-1963), published the text of the document, a single sheet handbill entitled "Secret Orders issued to Military Officers" in its issue for Saturday 22 April 1916 (vol. II no. 49), just two days before the Easter Rising began. However MacNeill discovered, sometime around 20 April that the 'Castle Document' was a fake. He put an advertisement in the Irish Independent newspaper which told all volunteers that 'No parades, marches or other movements of the Volunteers will take place.' This cancellation caused the IRB to move back the rebellion one day to Easter Monday - 24 April, 1916. Many rural Volunteers, who had come to town on Sunday only to hear the rebellion was cancelled, returned home. Although all the Rising's leaders now realised that they were doomed, they still went ahead with the plans for rebellion. There are only one or two recorded copies of this important document in public records. Very few can have survived as the printing would appear to have been small and the method of distribution via newspapers aborted. None of the textbook histories actually quote from it but rather paraphrase its content.. In terms of this identification, the only full printing of this was in the last issue of New Ireland before its suppression just prior to the Rising. The only reproduction of the handbill accompanied the Irish Press article of January 4 1937 by Hanna Sheehy Skeffington. Colm ? Lochlainn gave it an incorrect caption title in his short piece on Joseph Mary Plunkett as a printer, published in The Irish Book Lover for March 1954. Charles Townshend wrote in Easter 1916: The Irish Rebellion: "There had been a scare from a leaked Dublin Castle document apparently planning for repressive measures to be taken in the event of introducing conscription. This led to the ramping up of tension and expectation, and seemed to offer an excuse to start the rebellion on Easter Sunday. Eoin MacNeill, of course, countermanded the orders; but as things turned out, he was not fully in control, and the rebellion went ahead, though on a smaller scale, on Easter Monday instead." A little browned, but a good copy of a Scarce and Vulnerable Item. (1)

The Returned Volunteers. Important photograph by Keogh Brothers, 30cms x 38cms, mounted, showing a large party of Irish 1916 Volunteers, with a few family members, after their release from British jails, photographed outside Dublin's Mansion House.

The prisoners were released by a British Government decision of June 15 1917, ostensibly to secure a favourable atmosphere for the deliberations of the Irish Convention – but also because Sinn Fain had started nominating prisoners to contest Parliamentary by-elections.

In any case the releases were widely welcomed. Eoin MacNeill can be seen prominently near the centre here, second row from front, wearing an old-fashioned tie, with his arm ostentatiously around Eamon De Valera's shoulder to stress their reconciliation. Some of the others did not live to see the independence they had fought so hard to achieve.

A photograph of historic importance in Ireland's path to independence, an excellent copy. (1)

THE CHARLES DORAN ARCHIVE

A collection of Papers, Surveys, Reports, Photographs associated with the talented and versatile Charles Guilfoyle Doran (1835-1909)

"Charlie" Doran began his career as a plasterer in Dublin, and "through diligence and study" succeeded in qualifying as an architect and engineer. For most of his life he was actively involved in the Fenian movement; after the failure of the 1867 rising he escaped to France, and on his return to Ireland lived at Dunworth House, Queenstown (Cobh). He was Clerk of Works during the building of St Colman's Cathedral, and contributed to several public water schemes in Co. Cork. From 1883 he was one of the Queenstown Town Commissioners. He was also a keen member of the Cork Historical and Archaeological Society, contributing several papers to its journal, and assembled a fine private library.

The Archive comprising the following items, from aspects of Doran's Life:

- Scrapbook: "The Irish Agrarian Rebellion 1880-1881." Contains news cutting from the Illustrated London News, Graphic etc. with reports on parliamentary debates, full-page illustrations, caricatures. A graphic record of this troubled and contentious period in Irish history. Hardback (disbound), 45 x 31 cm.
- "Map of Paris with the latest improvements 1855." Compiled as a record of Queen Victoria's visit to Paris in August of that year (there are illustrations of her reception by Napoleon III on the back). Cloth backed; fragile. 70 x 55 cm.
- Manuscript list of 143 publications, many concerning Cork, with comments on some added in red ink.
- 42cms x 26.5 cms "Specifications & Quantities for the New Cathedral of Queenstown. Messrs Pugin & Ashlin Architects." Oct 1868. Bound vol with text and diagrams, with MS notes added.

St Colman's Cathedral, dramatically situated overlooking the town of Cobh and Cork Harbour, was begun in 1868 to the designs of Augustus Welby Pugin and George Ashlin. On Pugin's death in 1874, Ashlin appointed as his assistant a Dublin architect appropriately named Thomas Aloysius Coleman. Construction work continued for many years, and the cathedral was not consecrated until 1919.

Doran was Clerk of Works throughout, until his death in 1909. The steeply sloping site and French Gothic design, which necessitated the use of a wide variety of building materials, presented special challenges, and the successful completion of the project is a tribute to his skill as an engineer.

- "Specification of Waterworks for the Queenstown Town Commissioners (Tibbotstown Gravitation Scheme) 30 December 1896." Proof copy with MS additions and copy of revised edition. As a civil engineer, Doran was involved in several public water schemes in Co. Cork, the Tibbotstown reservoir in particular.
- "Queenstown Water Works Arbitration 1883. Town Commissioners v Queenstown Waterworks Company." 56 pp + Manuscript additions.
- Copy of the [Cork] Weekly Herald for Saturday 16 May 1895, with an article (p. 6) entitled "St Colman's Cathedral, Queenstown. A poem in art. Rapid progress towards completion." With 2 photographs: front exterior view, and view of high altar from a scaffold near the top of the main arch.
- Catalogue of the International Exhibition of Electrical Engineering, General Inventions and Industries, Edinburgh, 1890. With associated material including a plan of the building and grounds.
- Collins Pocket Diary for 1900. 10cms x 7.5cms Contains notes for many days up to 5 June, mainly re progress on the Cathedral and irrigation works. An important record of the work being done.
- Three Notebooks for the years 1879, 1892 and 1893, containing diary entries, descriptions and sketches, and inscriptions on monuments in graveyards.
- "Manuscript notes of Brash on Petrie's Round Towers not yet published." In envelope addressed to Doran.

The dating and function of Irish round towers has been hotly debated for a very long time. The first scholar to write authoritatively on the matter was George Petrie, whose 1833 essay Origin and uses of the Irish round towers was awarded a prize by the Royal Irish Academy. In 1875 the Cork architect and archaeologist Richard Rolt Brash (1817-1876) produced The Ecclesiastical Architecture of Ireland, to the close of the twelfth century, with text accompanied by 54 plates. Brash accepted Petrie's analysis on the whole, but denied that the towers had any ecclesiastical function.

This manuscript is in Brash's handwriting and may have been sent to Doran for his opinion, or perhaps to proof-read.

- "Letters of the late Joseph Brenan, poet and patriot, 1848-'49."

Corkman Joseph Brenan (1828-1857) was an active member of the Young Ireland movement and the Irish Confederation. He contributed letters, articles and poems to John Mitchel's United Irishman and other publications, was imprisoned after the failure of the 1848 rising, and upon his release attempted to revive the revolutionary movement. He was involved in the attack on Cappoquin police barracks, after which he escaped to America. There he continued his writing and married, but died at the age of 29.

- Extracts from Daniel O'Byrne's History of the Queen's County, Dublin 1856.
- Exercise Book: "Extracts from The Real Story of John Carteret Pilkington written by himself London 1760." (Pilkington, 1730-1763, was an Irish singer, writer and author of memoirs; son of Matthew Pilkington, art historian, and Laetitia Pilkington, poet and author of memoirs which have much to say about Swift)
- Various Newspaper Extracts Regarding:
Land League, Evictions, Royal Visit, 1885, Phoenix Park Murders, State of Ireland, Cork, Home Rule
- Exercise Book containing interesting MS account by Doran entitled "Some notes on the manner in which the O'Connell Memorial Church, Cahirciveen, was originated." A Gift from 'The Big Fellow'

[Michael Collins] A 19th Century Walking Stick, in heavy ebonised wood, length 34" (84cms), with embossed silver plated head (worn), gifted to Patrick Baker (sometime head barman at the Gresham Hotel) by Michael Collins in 1920, in gratitude for his "failing" to identify Collins to British agents who came to the hotel seeking him.

See attached letter of provenance, which tells the whole story, with a blue folder containing associated items relating to Patrick Baker, including an original menu from Jammets Restaurant, where Mr. Baker was later head waiter. This walking stick was carried by Collins as part of his attire to blend in with the gentleman folk that would frequent the hotel, and other venues through-out Dublin. The stick being of robust form, would presumably have been employed by Collins to protect his person should he have been identified by the authorities.

Provenance: A gift from General Michael Collins to Patrick Baker, and by direct family descent (letter available)

J.F.K.'s Visit to Ireland

1963 - Fascinating Collection of Documents relating to President Kennedy's visit to Ireland, 26th to 29th June, 1963, relating to policing and suppression of protests.

A collection of 15 letters, memos, circulars and other official documents issued before the visit by the Garda Crime Branch to members of An Garda Siochana. A fascinating primary source, demonstrating the Lemass government's determination that the visit be successful and not marred by Anti-US demonstrations.

The archive includes directions to officers that 'the movements and associates' of two Russian correspondents 'are to be discreetly watched.' The Russians are named as 'Evan Stenin, representing Tass, who arrived on June 22nd 1963 on Russian Passport, No. C 4199 and Guenrikh Trofinenko, representing Radio Moscow, who arrived on June 21st 1963 on Russian Passport No. C 60156, 'as they will be anxious to obtain material which would show the visit of President Kennedy in an unfavourable light.'

Further instructions from the Crime Branch request Gardai to suppress protests and 'play cards (sic) or slogans or other offensive matter to be removed' at centres to be visited by the President.

In communication stamped 25th June 1963 it is noted that 'The Commissioner directs that best serge uniform will be worn at all times during the president's visit. Members who, through no fault of their own have not received the current issue of uniform will be detailed for duty at places away from Presidential route.'

It is noted that 'Every Divisional Officer will ensure that only efficient members of presentable appearance and having had 'their hair trimmed' should give a first-class display of efficiency, smartness and courtesy.'

Many Gardai are named with service numbers recorded detailing arrangements for transport to Dublin, New Ross and Galway during the visit, including arrangements for 'two Buffet Type' meals in the Parish Hall in Wexford town.

File includes cancellation of all leave directive during the period 22nd to 29th June, subsistence allowances etc. As an Archive, w.a.f. (1)

Concerning the Publication of His First Book

MacSwiney (Terence) A long and interesting ALS to Fred Cronin, 27.5.[19]06, 12 pp (three folded sheets), with associated envelope, discussing his plans to publish his first collection of poetry, The Music of Freedom (1907), for which he had obtained costings from Guys (of Cork) and Gills. The estimate for 1,000 copies in cloth gilt came to £33, to be paid in advance, which he confesses 'has staggered me not a little', and Guy's representative also raised queries about the content. 'Moore asked me .. did it not advocate armed resistance? I said it depended on the moral he drew from it! He laughed. He then raised the question of trouble with - what do you think? - the Church! I said there would be no trouble with the Church, as long as I believed in the Church I would write nothing against it. He said of course .. But things are peculiar in Ireland, and there was - the Peasant! He actually brought up the suppression of the 'Peasant!' I told him some of those who disapproved most strongly of that suppression were priests, which seemed to surprise him ..' Also mentions other projects, the Craobh, the Celtic [Literary Society], etc. [Note: Cronin is addressed here as 'Conchubhar', the name he used when writing in Irish]. MacSwiney's collection, The Music Of Freedom, was published in 1907 under his own imprint, The Risen Gaedheal Press, printed by Guys of Cork, under the pen-name 'Cuireadir' ('Sower of seed'). He got his chosen Irish Vellum paper and cloth gilt binding, with the United Irish harp on front cover, but it is very unlikely that 1,000 copies were issued, as the book is rare; about 300 is more likely. A copy is included with this lot. 'For victory Is not in life alone, but in the strength That masters life to serve a noble purpose. And they have won their fight most gloriously, Who flung their lives with passionate resolve Against tyrannous empire; who in falling Did fire a million sleeping breasts to life ..' [p. 67]

The First Dail

O'Connor (Fergus) Publisher. The Declaration of Irish Independence Official English Translation. Historic Pronouncement of Ireland's Freedom from English Rule, made at the first meeting of Dail Eireann (Ireland's Republican Parliament) in the Mansion House Dublin, on Tuesday January 21st, 1919, roy 8vo 3pp (single folded sheet) some finger & dirt marks & folding crease on verso.

* An extremely rare document. The declaration states that 'whereas the Irish people is by right a free people: and whereas for seven-hundred years the Irish people has never ceased to repudiate and has repeatedly protested in arms against foreign usurpation... Now therefore we, the elected representatives of the ancient Irish people in National Parliament, Assembled, do, in the name of the Irish Nation, ratify the establishment of the Irish Republic and pledge ourselves and our people to make this declaration effective by every means at our command...' The declaration was adopted by acclamation, as the first substantive business on the first day's meeting of The First Dail, when the Sinn Fein M.P.s. elected at the British General Election of 1918 (those not in jail) met & declared themselves to be Ireland's sovereign Parliament. This document was vehemently suppressed by the British, and very few copies have survived. In very fine condition. (1)

A WORLD-CHANGING DOCUMENT

United States Declaration of Independence.

An original engraved facsimile copy of the Declaration of Independence of 4 July 1776, Published in 1833 by Peter Force and W.J. Stone. This is one of approx. 400 copies still known from the edition of 4000 copies which he proposed to print, but after mounting expenses and increased production delays the subscription fell off to approx. 500 copies.

This copy with direct provenance to Charles O'Connor, the distinguished Irish-American attorney and politician.

Measurement: 30.5 in (77cm) x 25.5 in (65cm)

"We hold these truths to be self-evident, that all men are created equal, that they are endowed by their Creator with certain unalienable Rights, that among these are Life, Liberty and the pursuit of Happiness.—That to secure these rights, Governments are instituted among Men, deriving their just powers from the consent of the governed,—That whenever any Form of Government becomes destructive of these ends, it is the Right of the People to alter or to abolish it, and to institute new Government, laying its foundation on such principles and organizing its powers in such form, as to them shall seem most likely to effect their Safety and Happiness.

"We, therefore, the Representatives of the United States of America, in General Congress, Assembled .. do, in the Name, and by Authority of the good People of these Colonies, solemnly publish and declare, That these united Colonies are, and of Right ought to be Free and Independent States .. and that as Free and Independent States, they have full Power to levy War, conclude Peace, contract Alliances, establish Commerce, and to do all other Acts and Things which Independent States may of right do."

The Declaration followed a period of stressed relations with Great Britain over trade and other matters. It was drafted mainly by Thomas Jefferson, with amendments by Benjamin Franklin, John Adams and others, and was adopted on 4 July 1776 by delegates from 13 States assembled in the Second Continental Conference. It provided the essential basis for the Treaty with revolutionary France agreed in 1778.

It is no exaggeration to say that this document changed the world, marking a decisive turn away from the era of unchallenged imperial expansion and the subjection of colonial peoples, and was thereafter a shining beacon to subject peoples everywhere, most notably the Irish. Three of the 56 signatories were born in Ireland, with a further 8 of Irish descent.

The Declaration of Independence was initially published as a broadside, printed by Robert Dunlap, in which form it was widely distributed and read to the public. The source copy used for this printing has been lost. The best-known version is a signed copy that is displayed at the National Archives in Washington, D.C., and which is popularly regarded as the official document. In 1820, when the ink on the Archives copy was seen to be fading, Congress commissioned the engraver William J. Stone to execute a full-scale facsimile, printed in 1823 in 200 copies on vellum, and issued to surviving signatories (including Jefferson and Adams) and other distinguished personalities.

It was issued to Charles O'Connor of New York, a son of Thomas O'Connor of the O'Connor Don family of Roscommon. Charles' father, Thomas was sworn into the United Irishmen by Wolfe Tone personally, and went to America after the failure of the 1798 Rebellion.

Charles O'Connor (1804-1884) was born in New York, and was called to the Bar in 1824. He quickly made his name as a trial lawyer; after his success in a major divorce and alimony case, he was presented with two silver vases - one by a group of 30 leading New York ladies, the other by sixty members of the Bar. Both vases are now in the New York Law Institute Library.

He was active in Irish support groups, including one intended to support a Fenian rising in Ireland, and for many years he was a major figure in Democratic politics. He was U.S. Attorney for the southern district of New York 1853-54. After the Civil War he was senior counsel for the Southern leader Jefferson Davis in his trial for treason. In the 1870s he was prominent in the successful campaign against William (Boss) Tweed of Tammany Hall.

In 1872 he was nominated for the Presidency of America by a southern Democratic group. He declined the nomination, but his name still appeared on the ballot paper – the first Catholic to receive such a nomination. After the 1876 election, he was advocate for his friend Samuel Tilden in his unsuccessful attempt to claim the Presidency, having won a plurality of the popular vote.

The present engraving came to light recently in a country house in the West of Ireland, where presumably it was brought by Charles O'Connor on a visit to his ancestral homeland.

An exceptionally rare and important document, truly one that has changed the world.

A superb memorial to a very distinguished Irish-American, and a confirmation and celebration of the Irish contribution to the constitutional development of the United States. In excellent condition.

Provenance: Charles O'Connor of New York [1804-1884]; by unbroken family descent.

Wilson (Florence M), Ulster Poet (c. 1870-1946). A binder containing fourteen original poems, mostly typescript with two manuscript, some signed or with m/ss. corrections, many of them about children or written in a child's voice, some probably unpublished. The last poem here is dated Jan. 1 1916. A few sheets fragile and strengthened to rear. With a folder containing a printed copy of The Hearthstone, The Story Magazine of Ireland, Vol.1 no 3, July 1922, containing Florence Wilson's best known work, the ballad 'The Man from God Knows Where' (about the 1798 leader Thomas Russell).

Florence Wilson published only one collection, The Coming of the Earls and Other Verse (Candle Press 1918). She was a friend of Alice Milligan and of Alice Stopford Green.

Estimate: 300 - 500

Lot 771

The Republican Poetess

Cavanagh MacDowell (Maevie) A folder containing a large collection of her original poetry, many signed, probably intended for a collected edition, with about 75 pages typescript (some duplication), including a poem in memory of Hermann Goertz, and about 15 items in manuscript, some signed, many with corrections, also a typescript list of her works and some other items.

* The folder also includes a sheet in Cavanagh's hand headed 'The night before 1916 in Liberty Hall', giving an important eyewitness account of the scene in Liberty Hall as Connolly tried to reassure Citizen Army members that the planned Rising had only been postponed. 'I remember how indignantly they exclaimed "Ah they'll never do anything". But Connolly soothed them down and told us all things would go on and it would be only a part postponement. He then showed us along the passages & into one of the rooms, the girls were still venting their disappointment. Dr. Lynn was there - Helena Molony & Mary Perotz ..' [See R.M. Fox's chapter on Cavanagh in his 'Rebel Irishwomen', elsewhere in this sale, where some of this account is confirmed].

The folder also contains an incomplete letter in an unknown hand, apparently referring to an occasion when Mary MacSwiney prevented a letter from [Michael] Collins being given to [her brother] Terry, then towards the end of his hunger strike. [It has been reported elsewhere that Collins urged MacSwiney to call off his strike]. There is also a letter or draft letter in Cavanagh's hand to a newspaper about cock-fighting, and a few childish letters addressed to 'Dear Nan'.

The poetry is of mixed quality. Cavanagh was not a major poet, but she was not without talent, and the best items in this collection are certainly worth preserving. Maevie Cavanagh was an early member of the Gaelic League in Dublin; later she moved to Sligo and Derry. She began writing verses for 'The Peasant', edited by W.P. Ryan, and wrote for various Republican and left-wing papers after her return to Dublin around 1910. She was often in Liberty Hall, and on Easter Monday morning, 1916, she was sent to Waterford with James Connolly's message, 'We fight at noon'. By the time she was able to return to Dublin, it was all over.

Her brother, Ernest Cavanagh, drew cartoons for 'The Irish Worker', for which Maeve wrote the captions. He was shot dead by a British soldier while standing unarmed on the steps of Liberty Hall on Easter Tuesday 1916. As a collection, w.a.f. (1)

Provenance: From the Family of Austin Stack.

Lot 772

Kelly (James Plunkett) A pre-publication cyclostyled typescript of his Novel Strumpet City (here titled 'The Strumpet City'), 671pp, apparently complete, dated at end April 1968, apparently sent to an American agent or publisher. Strumpet City was an enormous success worldwide when published here and in America in 1969; the television serial directed by Tony Barry for RTE was one of the best things the station has done. (1)

Estimate: 400 - 600

Fees: 23% inc VAT for absentee bids, telephone bids and bidding in person
26.075% inc VAT for Live Bidding and Autobids

Lot 773

'The loosed khaki cut-throats'

[Henderson (William A.)] Sometime Business Manager, Abbey Theatre. A folder of letters and research materials, apparently assembled by a retired teacher, Leslie Matson, possibly with a view to a biography. Henderson was Hon. Sec. to the National Literary Society for 15 years, and in 1907 was appointed Business Manager at the Abbey. Includes a most interesting ALS from Henderson to 'Father George' (George Gladstone, husband of Henderson's sister Grace, who had recently given birth to a child) from Birmingham, 26.5.07, mentioning Yeats and Lady Gregory and discussing the Abbey's English tour on which he was engaged. 'They shirked the Playboy here, after advertising, posting and paragraphing all over the place, the Directors stopped it. The License to produce it came here, and I have it. There was only one line objected to in it, and I was simply amazed. The Censor ordered this to be cut out. 'I wouldn't be fearing the loosed khaki cut throats' and any other allusions derogatory to the Army. Keep this to yourself.'

Includes other letters of mainly family interest, a copy of the programme for a 'complimentary performance' for Henderson at the Abbey, 4 September 1911, some genealogical notes, various reference notes, typescript copies of two newspaper articles by Henderson, a letter from Matson to a relative of Henderson, Sept. 1994, explaining his interest; a collection of newspaper cuttings about the Abbey, etc.; and also with a framed photograph of Henderson by Guy's of Cork. Henderson's theatrical scrapbooks are in the National Library of Ireland, and are a major source for the history of the Abbey Theatre. (1)

Private Edition
One of 30 Copies Only

Yeats (William Butler). Poems. Cuala Press, D. 1935, sm. qto, stiff blue paper covers, unlettered as issued, coloured initials and ornaments hand-drawn by Elizabeth Corbet Yeats, hand coloured f.p. also by ECY, one of 30 copies privately printed for Eleanor Lady Yarrow. A selection of nine poems, all from the early collections, presumably chosen by Lady Yarrow. Small ink stain on upper cover, small brown stain on pp. 4-5, slightly affecting neighbouring pages.

Eleanor Lady Yarrow, nee Barnes, born in Hertfordshire, was the second wife of a leading Scottish shipbuilder, Sir Alfred Yarrow. As a young woman she was a distinguished pianist and studied with Paderewski. Before her marriage in 1922 she was a leading campaigner for women's suffrage. After her husband's death in 1932 she moved to Ireland, living in Monkstown, where she died in 1953.

A copy of this work from Elizabeth Corbet Yeats' personal collection was sold at Sotheby's, 13.12.2007, lot 148, for £3,000 sterling. Sotheby's catalogue notes that only one other copy had appeared at auction in the previous 30 years.

Library Hub (formerly COPAC) records one copy only, in TCD. There is also a copy in NLI, from WBY's personal library. Miller p. 130; Wade 184.

One of the very rarest Yeats items, and a most attractive book. (1)

A Superb Copy, internally immaculate, bound by Bayntun-Riviere in full blue patinated morocco, gilt title on spine, turn-ins gilt, t.e.g., other edges untrimmed, marbled e.p.s, original paper covers (strengthened) bound in at rear, in a matching blue morocco backed folding clamshell box. (1)

As we approach the 100th Anniversary of its publication on 2 February (Joyce's birthday), there can be no better occasion to purchase a copy of this wonderful and revolutionary book, still full of mysteries a century after publication, and there can certainly be no better copy on the market. The First Edition of just 1000 copies is distinguished from all later printings by the use of fine hand-made paper, which has survived a century between covers as though printed just yesterday. The cornerstone of any Irish collection, Ulysses looks likely to dominate the literature and criticism of the 21st century as it has dominated the 20th. A magnificent copy, offered at a price which may look like the bargain of the century in a few years' time.

Bloody Sunday, 1920

A Dark Day in GAA & Irish History

'Bloody Sunday' An original Admission Ticket to Croke Park, Great Challenge Match (Football), Tipperary v. Dublin, Sunday, November 21, 1920. Pink card, 3 ins x 4 ¼ ins, overall good condition, minor creasing. It was at this match that British soldiers opened fire on the pitch and crowd, killing a player and twelve spectators. This followed Michael Collins' operation against British secret service agents earlier that morning, in which fourteen British officers were shot dead. The period 1918 - 1920 was a turbulent and dangerous period in Irish History. Martial Law was enforced in many areas, and the activities of the G.A.A. and other Sporting Organisations were severely curtailed. The behaviour of the British Forces in Ireland forced many young men to join the Irish Volunteers, and other Republican Organizations despite having no background in the movement. Especially in Tipperary, many young men of the time, and particularly those involved in

Gaelic Games joined in the struggle for Irish Independence. With such exciting events as the Rescue of Sean Hogan at Knocklong Railway Station in May 1919, several of the country's leading Footballers became involved in the War of Independence. By early March 1920 the number of Gaelic Games played almost came to a standstill. This trend continued into the early summer when normally the volume of activity should have been increasing. In October there came a sudden and brief revival of Inter-County Fixtures. However, the following month was to have a tragic outcome. In early October, approximately five thousand spectators who had so far that year had little exciting fare were entertained by a rousing Challenge Football Match in Croke Park, between Dublin and Kildare, which Dublin won. Soon afterwards, the Tipperary County Board issued a challenge to Dublin. A match was arranged for 2.45 p.m. on Sunday November 21st, again at Croke Park. The game was well organised, and advertised as The G.A.A. Challenge Match. It was intended that the money raised from the match would help the Association for the Dependents of the I.R.A. who had been killed or imprisoned. The events which occurred at that game, now known as "Bloody Sunday," followed the early morning assassination of eleven British Intelligence Agents, "The Cairo Gang," in an operation organized by Michael Collins. When the British retaliated later that day, it was to Croke Park that the Military and Auxiliary Forces came, recognizing that the Stadium was the centre and symbol of Irish Nationalism and Nationalistic Aspirations. "Then suddenly and without any warning, Croke Park was the scene of a holocaust?" They fired into the crowd indiscriminately, killing twelve people and wounding about sixty, "On the field Michael Hogan, one of the Tipperary backs (and one of only two Irish Volunteer Officers on the Tipperary Team) lay mortally wounded, while within seconds a dozen spectators were dead or dying, many more seriously wounded." This was Bloody Sunday. Nothing more strikingly illustrates the close connections between the G.A.A. and the Republican Movement between 1916 and 1922, than "Bloody Sunday"; together with a Photograph of Frank Mc Parland, wearing his medals. (2)

Provenance: Frank Mc Parland, G.P.O. / O'Connell Street Garrison 1916 Rising, who attended the Game. It was sold at O'Reilly's Auctions in 1993 along with his medals and other artefacts, and by descent to the present vendor.

The Holy Grail for Gaelic Footballers

G.A.A.: Sam Maguire Cup: An exact full-size replica in silver plate of the Sam Maguire Cup, presented to the Gaelic Athletic Association in 1928 as a perpetual trophy for the All-Ireland senior football championship. Height approx. 15 ins (38cms), diam. including handles approx. 25ins (64cms). An exact facsimile in all respects except the use of silver plate (the original is in solid silver). A most impressive artefact, in very good condition.

Sam Maguire [1877-1927] was born in Dunmanway, Co. Cork. On leaving school he passed the UK Civil Service examination and was posted to London, where he joined other Corkmen including P.S. O'Hegarty and Michael Collins. As a young man he was an outstanding footballer, and played in three All-Ireland finals, captaining the London (Hibernians) team in 1901 and 1903. Later he was chairman of the London County Board and a trustee of Croke Park. He was also prominent in the IRB and the Republican movement, and was one of those who brought Michael Collins into the IRB. During the War of Independence he was the IRA's Chief Intelligence Officer in Britain.

In 1923 he returned to Ireland to work in the Irish Post Office, but was dismissed in December 1924, apparently for continuing IRB activities. He suffered from TB in his later years, and died in February 1927.

After his death, a group of his friends commissioned a trophy in his memory, to be presented annually to the winners of the All-Ireland Senior Football Championship. It was crafted by silversmith Matthew Staunton of Hopkins and Hopkins of Dublin, on the model of the Ardagh Chalice. It was recently listed as one of 100 artworks typifying modern Ireland. The original is now in the GAA Museum; the trophy now presented to the All-Ireland winners is a recent facsimile.

In 1928 Kildare was the first county to win the Sam Maguire Cup. Sixteen counties have held the trophy since then; by 2019, Kerry has won it thirty times.

Provenance: Commissioned by a Private Irish Collector in the 1980's.

* The original Sam Maguire Cup commemorates the memory of Sam Maguire, an influential figure in the London GAA and a former footballer. A group of his friends formed a committee in Dublin under the chairmanship of Dr Pat McCartan from Carrickmore, County Tyrone, to raise funds for a permanent commemoration of his name. They decided on a cup to be presented to the GAA. The Association were proud to accept the Cup. At the time it cost £300. The commission to make it was given to Hopkins and Hopkins, of O'Connell Bridge, Dublin.

The silver cup was crafted, on behalf of Hopkins and Hopkins, by the silversmith Matthew J. Staunton of D'Olier Street, Dublin. Maitiú Standun, Staunton's son, confirmed in a letter printed in the Alive! newspaper in October 2003 that his father had indeed made the original Sam Maguire Cup back in 1928.

The Holy Grail for Hurlers

G.A.A.: Liam Mc Carthy Cup: An exact full-size replica in silver plate of the Liam McCarthy Cup, presented to the Gaelic Athletic Association in 1922 as a perpetual trophy for the All-Ireland Senior Hurling Championship. Height approx. 13 ins (33cms), diam. approx. 9 ins (23cms), an exact facsimile in all respects except the use of silver plate (the original is in solid silver). In very good condition.

Liam McCarthy [1853-1928] was born in London to Irish parents – his mother was from Limerick and his father from Cork. It is said that Irish was the first language of his home. As a young man he was a keen sportsman and hurler, and often hurled on Clapham Common. A successful businessman, he became treasurer and president of the GAA's London County Board, and vice president of the Gaelic League.

In 1922 he offered to commission a trophy for presentation annually to the winners of the All-Ireland Senior Hurling Championship. It was made by Edmund Johnson Jewellers of Grafton Street, Dublin, on the model of an ancient drinking cup or mether. The original trophy is now in the GAA Museum. In 1991 it was replaced by a facsimile for annual presentation.

The trophy was first won by Limerick in 1923. Ten different counties have held the cup; by 2019 Kilkenny had won it 29 times.

Provenance: Commissioned by a Private Irish Collector in the 1980's.

*Modelled on an ancient drinking vessel, known as a mether, the Liam MacCarthy Cup was wrought by Edmund Johnson Jewellers of Grafton Street, Dublin and cost £50. The original Liam MacCarthy Cup was first won by Limerick in 1923. This was actually for the 1921 championship, which was delayed due to unrest in Ireland.

Medals: G.A.A., Hurling [Kilkenny 1907 - 1912] An important Group of four 9ct gold Celtic Cross All-Ireland Hurling Winners Medals, each obverse with raised design and pierced centre. Inscribed around the rim 'Cumann Luith gCleas Gaedhael,' and 'Eire' across the centre. The reverse with variant inscription as follows:

(a) "All-Ireland Hurling Championship 1907 - won by Kilkenny R. Doherty," hallmarked .

* This was Kilkenny's Third All-Ireland title, captained by Dick "Drug," Walsh they beat Cork 3.12 to 4.8, the final took place at Fraher Field in Dungarvan, on 21st June 1908.

(b) "All-Ireland Hurling C'ship 1909 won by Kilkenny R. Doherty," hallmarked.

* This was the Cats 4th All-Ireland Title, once again captained by 'Drug' Walsh, they beat Tipperary on a score line of 4.6 to 0.12. The final was played at Cork Athletic Grounds, Cork on 12 December 1909.

(c) "All-Ireland Hurling Championship won by Kilkenny 1911," hallmarked. This was the Noresiders 5th All-Ireland Title. The Championship was not without controversy. The Final was supposed to have been played between Limerick and Kilkenny, but the Treaty Men refused to complete at Thurles, after the original match at Cork was postponed in February 1911 due to the pitch's condition. As a result of refusal, Tipperary were nominated to play Kilkenny. The Final eventually took place at Fraher Field, Dungarvan on 28th July 1912, the Cats won 3.3. to 1.1.;

(d) "All Ireland Hurling C'ship 1912. Won by Kilkenny - R. Doherty," hallmarked.

* It was the 25th staging of the All-Ireland Final. it was the Noresiders 6th title, the match was played at Jones Road, with an attendance of 18,000. the Cats played the rebels on 17th November 1912 and beat them 2.1 to 1.3.
